

Fuel Assistance Program

The Fuel Assistance Program can help pay a portion of your heating bills if electricity is your main heating source and you meet certain eligibility requirements. To apply, contact your local Community Action Agency.

If you received Fuel Assistance benefits last winter, you may have been mailed a recertification application during September. Complete and return this application to your Community Action Agency.

How To Apply – You must contact your local Community Action Agency (see “Where to Apply” section on the next page) and complete an Electric Assistance Program application.

Your local Community Action Agency will determine your eligibility based on your annual household income. Liberty cannot determine your eligibility for this program. Your local Community Action Agency will notify us if you qualify.

Other Programs

Energy Efficiency – Programs are available to help reduce electricity and fuel costs for income eligible customers. An energy expert from your local Community Action Agency provides an analysis, detailing proposed energy efficiency upgrades to help save energy and money. You may also qualify for other items, including:

- Water saving, insulation and air sealing measures
- Heating system replacements for old, inefficient systems

Additional Help

Neighbor Helping Neighbor – For limited income households not eligible for Electric Assistance, the Neighbor Helping Neighbor Fund may be able to help you. This is a private charitable fund that provides assistance to those customers whose income is above the Fuel Assistance guidelines. Apply at your local Community Action Agency.

211 – Call 211 or visit www.211.org to learn about additional assistance programs in your area. This is a free, confidential referral service that connects callers with essential health and human services 24/7.

Payment Options

Levelized Budget Billing – Electric Assistance benefits may not cover all winter electric bills and should not be relied upon to meet all of your energy needs. You should consider enrolling in Levelized Budget Billing, which helps you avoid high winter bills by spreading your annual cost into manageable monthly payments.

Payment Arrangements – Special payment plans may be available for residential customers with past due balances. To establish a payment arrangement on your account, please contact Customer Care at 1-800-375-7413. A representative will work with you to establish a plan to address the overdue balance on your account.
