With Levelized Budget Billing, customers can spread holiday energy costs over the entire year, making winter bills more manageable.

There are also state and federally funded programs available to income-eligible customers, such as the Electrical Assistance Program (EAP) and Fuel Assistance. ## Bright Ideas for New Year's Resolutions

When the first day of January comes around, it's seen as an opportunity to make resolutions for the year ahead. New Year's resolutions may involve taking small steps or making larger commitments, but either way, they can have a huge impact. This year, consider making resolutions to help you save energy.

- Change your light bulbs to LEDs – they last longer, are more durable, and are also more energy efficient.
- Air-seal your home. Caulking and weatherstripping are simple and effective air-sealing techniques.
- Install timers for your lights and appliances. Timers are low-cost, easy-to-install, and can turn off lights/appliances not in use.
- Use a programmable thermostat to help reduce heating and cooling costs.

Tax Credits Available for Home Improvement

Good news for NH residents! The IRS reinstated and increased the Energy-Efficient Home Improvement Credit, which allows households to credit up to 30% of the cost of energy efficiency home upgrades against their taxes. This credit can total up to $1,200 per year for weatherization work completed at your home. The full credit is available for home improvements made starting in 2023.
